The United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN Women) is inviting women’s civil society organizations and civil society organizations (CSOs) that work on promoting women’s rights and gender equality to submit proposals to develop system of data recording of women survivors by adopting unified/integrated approach and strengthening data confidentiality, referral, and safety risk assessment to contribute to the implementation of the Programme “Ending Discrimination and Violence against Women: Implementing Norms, Changing Minds.”

TERMS OF REFERENCE

I. Background

“Ending Violence Against Women: Implementing norms, changing minds is a UN Women Programme funded by the European Commission (EC), which aims to support a reduction in discrimination and violence against women and girls in six Western Balkan countries (Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Montenegro, Kosovo<sup>1</sup> and Serbia) and Turkey.

Funded by the European Commission (EC) within the Instrument for Pre-Accession Assistance (IPA) II, the Programme is aligned with the European Union (EU) accession standards to achieve equality between women and men. The Programme is anchored in CEDAW and the Council of Europe Convention on preventing and combating violence against women and domestic violence (Istanbul Convention).

This three-year programme supports the development of an enabling legislative and policy environment on eliminating violence against women and all forms of discrimination; promotes favorable social norms and attitudes to prevent gender discrimination and violence against women; and pursues empowering women and girls (including those from disadvantaged groups) who have experienced discrimination or violence to advocate for and use available, accessible, and quality services.

In 2015-2016, UN Women in partnership with the Council of Europe conducted a multi-country study on the accessibility and availability of support services for women and girls subjected to gender-based violence in Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Montenegro, Serbia and Turkey in order to assess the existing services and normative frameworks against the standards set by the Istanbul Convention.

Based on the findings of the study, in Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia there is an overall availability of general support services focused on survivors of family violence, but significant gap in provision of specialist support services – those services exclusively designed to provide support services to survivors of all forms of violence against women (VAW). Recommendations stemming from the Multi-country study are pointing—among others—to the needs to:

- a) Revise existing practices within general and specialized services towards women survivors of violence and adopt an integrated approach, oriented towards the needs and rights of the survivor and survivor empowerment. In doing so, they should pay particular attention to strengthening data confidentiality and the safety of women survivors;
- b) Develop, adopt and implement clear and consistent standards that meet the Istanbul Convention requirements on providing specialized and general services for survivors of VAW.

Additionally, the recommendation number 23 of the CEDAW Concluding Observations on the fourth and fifth periodic report of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia (March 2013) indicated—among others—the need to:

- a) Enhance the system of data collection to ensure that it is disaggregated by type of violence and by the relationship of the perpetrator to the survivor, and support research in this field and ensure that information and collected data are available to the public;
- b) Encourage women to report incidents of domestic and sexual violence by raising awareness about the criminal nature of such acts and to provide adequate assistance and protection to women survivors of violence, including Roma women and women from other ethnic minorities;

II. Objective of UN Women's Support

In this context, UN Women is issuing a Call for Proposals (CfP) to select a Responsible Party to review the existing data collection templates and practices used by Civil Society Organizations, and to develop system for data recording of women survivors of violence by adopting unified, integrated approach and strengthening data confidentiality, referral, and safety risk assessment.

Systematic and adequate data recording has long been recognized as an essential component of effective policy-making in the field of preventing and combating all forms of VAW and domestic violence. A unified system for data recording, which regularly collects representative and comparable data, will provide the information needed to design and implement evidence-based policies and assess whether they meet the needs of those exposed to violence. Additionally, systematic and adequate data recording is an essential component for improved case management of survivors of all forms of violence and discrimination. Despite the recognition of these benefits, the current system of data recording of specialist service providers is still not in line with the standards of Istanbul Convention.

III. Scope of the Call for Proposals

This CfP is framed within the programme “Ending Violence against Women and Girls in six Western Balkan countries and Tukey: Implementing Norms, Changing Minds.” More specifically, the CfP falls under the programme Specific Objective 3: “Empowering women and girls (including those from disadvantaged groups) who have experienced discrimination or violence to advocate for and use available, accessible and quality services.”

It is expected that the project(s) to be implemented under this CfP contribute to Result 3.2, “Improved case management by providers of specialist support services for victims of all forms of violence/ discrimination, with a specific focus on women and girls from minorities and disadvantaged groups.”

The system for data recording and processing of cases used by providers of specialist services, needs to be unified and ensure regular, timely and comparable data collection on cases of VAW. Further, the data recording system should guarantee highest confidentiality standards, effective referral and coordination among service providers and possibility for efficient safety risk assessment.

The CfP envisages the following interventions:

- Review the existing system of data recording, and revise guidelines and templates used by the CSO service providers in the country, to assess gaps and areas for intervention, and develop a unified data recording system that is applicable for all specialist service providers in compliance with the standards set with the Istanbul Convention. The use of information technologies is required; The Responsible Party should ensure coordination with the current assessment of data recording within the general support services (Police, Centers for Social Work) done with support from UNDP and should take into account the recommendations and potential revisions of the templates for data recording;
- Strengthen the capacities of CSO service providers on the use of the newly developed system of data recording to ensure regular and timely provision of unified data and evidence, and enhanced use of data for policy changes and advocacy;
- Organize working meetings with public officials to present the newly developed system of data recording among CSO service providers and discuss on the interest and possibilities for establishing one unified system for data collection between public and CSO service providers;
- Propose and carry out piloting of the new system of data recording by CSO service providers, validate its efficiency with service providers, and finalize the system incorporating their feedback;
- Increase awareness and access to information on rights and services available in response to violence against women, including designing and implementing innovative cutting-edge campaigns to inform women about their rights and services available as well as carrying out outreach activities within the communities to increase confidence among women to report violence.
