TERMS OF REFERENCE

Service	Research for establishing the concrete brick's maintenance and curing process in accordance with Viet Nam's climatic conditions
Duty station:	Ha Noi and other provinces as required
Expected Duration:	238 man-days starting from December 2018
Supervision:	The Project Building Material Expert

1. General Background

The Government issued the Decision 121/QD-TTg dated August 29th, 2008 on “Master plan on development of building materials up to 2020”. This document is replaced by the Prime Minister's recent Decision No. 1469/QD-TTg dated August, 22nd, 2014 on Approval of the Master plan on development of building materials up to 2020 and orientations to 2030

To promote the development of NFB, the Prime Minister has issued the Decision No. 567/QD-TTg dated April, 28th, 2010 on NFB Development program up to 2020 (Program 567). The targets of the program 567 are:

- Market share of NFB will increase to 20% - 25% by 2015 and 30% - 40% by 2020;
- Annually, around 15-20 million tonnes of industrial waste (ash) from coal-fired power plants and coal fired furnaces of other industries will be used to produce non-fired building materials, saving around 1,000 hectares of agriculture land each year;
- All traditional fired clay brick (FCB) making plants will be gradually replaced by NFB production factories.

On 19th September, 2014, the Prime Minister issued Decision No. 1686/QD-TTg on approval of the list of Projects which are funded by the United Nations Development Program (UNDP) and the executing entity is Ministry of Science and Technology.

The objective of the Project is to reduce the annual growth rate of greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions by gradually decreasing the use of fossil fuels and good quality soil for brick making through the promotion of production, sale and utilization of non-fired bricks in Viet Nam. This objective will be achieved by removing barriers to production and utilization of NFBs through conducting 4 following components:

- i) Component 1: Policy support for NFB technology development;
- ii) Component 2: Technical capacity building on NFB technology application and operation and use of NFB products;
- iii) Component 3: Sustainable financing support for NFB technology application;
- iv) Component 4: NFB production technology demonstration, investment and replication.

This project will be implemented for a 5-year period and it is expected to generate GHG emission reductions through the replacement of coal-fired clay brick kilns. Direct GHG reduction is estimated at 383 ktonnes CO₂. Indirect greenhouse gas emission reduction is estimated at 13,409 ktonnes CO₂ that is cumulative for a 10-year period after the end of the Project.

According to the report by MOC, Non-fired brick production output in 2017 is about 6.5 Billion SBU, with most of it being Concrete Brick Blocks (CBB). However the NFB's utilization is still limited due to many reasons like: Users have very little awareness of NFB products; cracking and water infiltration in buildings using NFB; low quality of NFB products due to deficiencies in the production process including lack of an appropriate product maintenance and curing process suiting the different climatic conditions.

Viet Nam is a country located in the Northern Hemisphere, with tropical monsoon climate, with a hot, humid and distinctly seasonal climate. Due to its geography extending lengthwise from north to south, the climate also varies from region to region: The northern provinces are tropical monsoon, with hot summers and cold winters. While the southern provinces have a particular monsoon climate characterized by high temperature, with little change over the year and the humidity levels varying according to the season. Climatic factors, including: humidity, air temperature, wind speed, solar radiation, rainfall are different in each region and each season.

Therefore, in order to ensure the quality of CBB in hot and humid climates in the production process, it is necessary to apply a climate appropriate maintenance and curing method. However, in Viet Nam, studies are still few on moisture and hot-humid curing methods for concrete products with large surface.

The Institute of Building Materials is currently conducting a research on causes of cracking and water infiltration prevalent in buildings in Viet Nam using CBB. Preliminary results suggests multiple factors such as CBB product quality and building design and construction. The research identifies 3 factors affecting NFB product quality: i) control of raw materials and their mix proportion; ii) mixing process of raw materials; and iii) maintenance and curing of CBB. In addition, expert opinions suggest that among these three factors from NFB production, maintenance and curing of NFB products is the most significant.

Recognizing the need for a research on the maintenance and curing process for CBB that is appropriate for the climatic conditions, in the 2018 project work plan, the Project plans to recruit a firm/contractor to support the improvement of maintenance and curing of CBB.

2. Objective of the Assignment

The Objective of the assignment is to develop guidelines on the process of maintenance and curing CBB appropriate to the climatic conditions in the different regions of Viet Nam based on research of impact of inadequate CBB curing practices in Viet Nam on the development of strength and stability of CBB.

3. Scope of work

The overall plan of the research is to manufacture, cure and transport CBB samples under controlled conditions, and transport it to a lab where the testing and research would be done. The specific task and responsibilities of the experts to achieve the objectives, are as follows:

3.1. Prepare Report 1 (inception report), which includes the outline of detailed plan for implementation of tasks, research methods; consult expert's and finalise it.

3.2. Investigate and collect data on damaged and cracked wall products/components using CBB in Viet Nam (3 regions: North, Central and South), and submit the information through Report 2.

3.3. Study and evaluate the development of strength and deformation-shrinkage of CBB products for all regions: North, Center and South according to climatic conditions including the following contents:

3.3.1. Identify and select concrete brick manufacturing enterprises that are willing to cooperate with this initiative, as well as building material testing laboratory". In consultation with these stakeholders, establish a joint plan for implementing the research.

3.3.2. Establish the process of manufacturing, maintaining, curing and transporting experimental samples of CBB from each climatic region and deploy all groups of samples according to research plan.

- The process of sampling and preservation of concrete brick samples for 3 regions: North, Central and South: samples taken at factories representing three climatic zones, 5 samples (1 group) from each batch of concrete bricks of the same age;

- Study on concrete brick weight loss over time, development of strength, shrinkage, structure of concrete brick over time. Total: 244 samples, of which:
 - Weight loss over time: 3 regions × 2 curing conditions × 2 grades (7.5 and 10 Mpa) × 2 seasons ~ 24 groups of samples.
 - Development of strength of concrete brick over time (as above) ~ 140 groups of samples
 - Development of shrinkage of concrete brick over time (as above) ~ 56 groups of samples
 - Structure of concrete brick curing in hot and humid climate condition (as above) ~ 24 groups of samples

3.3.3. Experiment, synthesize and evaluate the results of research on the development of strength, volume change (shrinkage) and structure of concrete bricks over time.

3.3.4. Prepare Report 3 on the results of the research covering the above-mentioned contents.

3.4. Develop a draft guideline (Report 4) on the process of maintenance and curing of CBB in accordance with the climatic conditions in the North, Central and South of Viet Nam. Consult experts and finalise the guideline.

3.5. Coordinate with the Project Management Unit to request the Science and Technology Council to evaluate the draft guideline. Complete the evaluation and approval process according to the requirements of the Science and Technology Council.

3.6. Prepare Report 5 on the results of the assigned tasks.

Methodology

- The consultant should come from the objective of the task, to build a suitable and effective method of implementation.
- The consultant has to apply the latest analysis and evaluation methods in research, survey and analysis.
- Ensure proper consultation with leading experts in concrete and concrete bricks from the Building Materials Association, Concrete Association, concrete brick manufacturers, so that the consultants will have a more comprehensive and realistic view to establish the outline and detailed plan for the performance of task.
- Ensure the correct procedures, accuracy and reliability, while carrying out the fabrication, maintenance, curing and testing in collaborating with the selected concrete brick manufacturing enterprises and laboratories for tropical building materials
