1. BACKGROUND

The UNDP Seoul Policy Centre (USPC) for Global Development Partnerships started operating in 2011, a year after UNDP closed its Country Programme in Korea and the UNDP Country Office formally ceased its operations. USPC represents UNDP in Korea, works with Korean partners and UNDP's global network to share Korea's development experience in support of the global development agenda, and undertakes policy analysis and research on international issues.

The key functions of the Centre are:

- )] To serve as the immediate interface with the Government on all aspects relating to the evolving Republic of Korea-UNDP partnership;
- )] To serve as a knowledge center for comparative experiences and approaches of new development partners in reducing poverty and achieving sustainable human development;
- )] To facilitate and promote learning, networking, policy dialogue and consultation among new development partners and to contribute to capacity development in developing countries.

Since 2017, the work of USPC is organized under three main pillars: Global Development Agenda; Development Solutions Partnerships; Policy Research, with two cross-cutting pillars: Communications and Gender. One of the main reasons for establishment of the UNDP Seoul Policy Centre (USPC) was to facilitate access to knowledge and expertise on Korean development and link it with UNDP's wider network.

In this context, Development Solutions Partnerships (DSPs) is USPC's flagship country implementation support programme since 2015.

In line with this target, USPC has been brokering policy innovation through knowledge-sharing between Korea and developing countries since 2014. Noting one-off country exchanges often fail to produce concrete results at the country level, since 2015 USPC has engineered its own implementation modality for systematic, cost-effective, and impactful development cooperation for knowledge-sharing and policy innovation, under the Development Solutions Partnership (DSP) programme. To date, the Centre under the DSP programme has implemented 24 collaborative projects with 21 countries in the areas of governance, gender, and environment. The programme supports developing countries (selected on a competitive basis through the Call for Proposals) to benchmark, localize, and institutionalize Korea's tested-and-proven policy tools in country-specific ways that help the country's SDG implementation in several areas, such as governance, public infrastructure, gender and gender-based violence, and environment (i.e. SDG 5, 6, 7, 8, 11, 12, 13, 15, and 16).

In the governance portfolio, there are 6 active projects in the area of gender-based violence; 4 active projects in the area of anti-corruption, and 2 active projects in the area of open data & public construction transparency.

Through DSP programme, USPC seeks to serve within our Global Policy Network as a node for innovating policy solutions through systematic knowledge sharing between Korea and developing countries, as well as among developing countries. This is in line with UNDP corporate strategies and signature solutions – by bringing together partners to seek concrete and practical solutions through provision of top-notch policy advisory services and rapid deployment of relevant experts.

In DSP programme, USPC staff actively work with UNDP country offices and their national partners on a daily basis, providing policy advisory and project implementation support services to partner countries. USPC also supports the Korean experts in documenting, packaging, and sharing their policy tools and lessons learned.

This consultancy will provide support to DSP project implementation and related policy work in the governance portfolio for 6 months.
