Description of Requirements

Context of the Requirement	To develop Innovative data visualization and data sharing platform on forest degradation and forest cover loss
Implementing Partner of UNDP	UNDP – ACCELERATOR LAB
Brief Description of the Required Services[1]	The Accelerator Lab would like to undertake an experiment by developing a real-time data visualization platform on the current state of deforestation in selected forests of Uganda. The Data experiment is specifically designed: (i) To harness technology and mine real-time and innovative data on the current state of deforestation, forest cover loss and afforestation efforts in place. (ii) To develop a data sharing platform and harmonize datasets that can be accessible to government, private sector and other players on the trends of deforestation and forest cover loss to facilitate decision making The platform can be harnessed to forecast future trends and predict occurrences on Uganda's forests to garner support for prevention and mitigation. Access to up-to-date innovative data will trigger response actions by the various players in the ecosystem and garner support in a more strategic and coordinated way in order to reverse the rapid rate of deforestation.
List and Description of Expected Outputs to be Delivered	1. Introduction In 2019 UNDP launched the world's largest learning network around development challenges in an effort to re-imagine development for the 21st century. At the heart of this network is a cohort of 60 Accelerator Labs based in 60 countries. The Uganda Accelerator Lab completed a Sense-making workshop and identified Deforestation as a frontier issue to tackle for the first cycle among other prevailing development challenges. Over the last years, Uganda's forests have faced severe pressures mainly from agricultural conversion as a result of population increase, urban demand for charcoal and wood fuel, over grazing, uncontrolled timber harvesting and policy failures. National environment Authority (NEMA) reports that over 90% of the households use wood fuel for cooking, (NEMA, 2018). As result, the rate of deforestation is on the rise leading to air pollution, increasing levels of poisonous gases and environmental heat and the resulting effect of Climate change which is being felt now more than ever. According to Ministry of Water and Environment (2016), Forest cover in 1990 was at 24%, in 2000 it was at 17 %, 2010 at 13% and in 2015 it was 8% which signals that there is enormous decline of forest cover. The lab has engaged in numerous intensive activities to identify and map-out the drivers of deforestation with stakeholders. This also included a Data workshop that was convened to explore the most recent data on the drivers of deforestation, the rate of forest cover loss and the most affected regions in the country. Additionally, the lab did a nationwide 'call for solutions' to identify interventions by communities, individuals, entrepreneurs, organizations in attempting to solve the issue of Deforestation.

From these activities it is evident that there is an existing gap on access to recent and real-time data. The official latest data that is available dates back in 2016. We do not have data published for the last three years despite the many initiatives that have been encouraging re-afforestation. The Lab would therefore like to undertake an experiment on data visualization and to develop a data sharing platform that could be used by the public, private sector and academia for research and to make decisions based on real-time evidence. We believe access to up-to-date innovative data will trigger response actions by the various players in the ecosystem and garner support for prevention and mitigation in a more strategic and coordinated way in order to reverse the rapid rate of deforestation.

2. Objectives

The Data experiment is designed to engage a technical institution to:

(i) To harness technology and mine real-time and innovative data on the current state of deforestation, forest cover loss and afforestation efforts in place.

(ii) To develop a data sharing platform and harmonize datasets that can be accessible to government, private sector and other players on the trends of deforestation and forest cover loss and facilitate decision making

(iii) To generate and forecast future trends and predict occurrences on forests to garner support for prevention and mitigation.

3. Management Arrangement

The identified firm will work together with Accelerator Lab team in the data system analysis, system design, implementation and engagement of stakeholders.

4. Scope of work and deliverables

i. A mini pilot on two selected most affected regions endowed with forests in Uganda.
ii. Latest data sets on the rate of deforestation and forest cover loss on those identified forests.
iii. Data sharing platform that will harmonize the different innovative data sources and facilitate decision making

5. Required Skills and Experience

The Firm/CSO/Team shall be a multidisciplinary team and shall demonstrate competence in GIS, research, software engineering, and data science.
