United Nations Pacific Regional Anti-Corruption Project (UN-PRAC)

Terms of Reference

Building the capacity of Pacific media in reporting on anti-corruption, integrity, UNCAC, SDG16

Background

The UN Pacific Regional Anti-Corruption Project (UN-PRAC) is a joint initiative between United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) that aims to support institutional strengthening of national integrity mechanisms of Pacific island countries to promote 'clean' governments and create an enabling environment, vibrant with business, trade, investment and sustainable development.

Based on the UN Convention Against Corruption (UNCAC) and Sustainable Development Goal (SDG) 16, the goal of the project has been to strengthen measures to prevent and fight corruption more effectively and efficiently in the Pacific.

UN-PRAC aims to build the capacity of selected national media associations and other journalists from the Pacific nations to strengthen their capacity to report on UNCAC implementation, accountability and SDG 16 integrity issues.

Building on the previous media work by UNPRAC, this request for proposals aims to further strengthen the Pacific Anti-Corruption Journalists Network (PACJN), established with UN-PRAC at the 2019 Pacific Islands News Association (PINA) CEOs Leadership Summit, so as Pacific journalists are more sustainably trained and prepared and have ownership of their engagement in integrity and anti-corruption reporting.

PACJN is now represented in eight Pacific countries with close links to the active national media associations, with a membership drive still ongoing, closely linked to UN-PRAC media training undertaken in-country during 2019 and 2020. The aim is to have member journalists in all Pacific countries.

PACJN intends to play a major role in the region, ensuring that their members (i.e. Pacific based journalists/freelancers who have a passion and interest about anti-corruption), are provided with the appropriate support and guidance to report on events affecting Pacific people. It is imperative that to carry out this plan, PACJN must endeavor to work with all regional and international organizations including the United Nations. The partnership between UN-PRAC and Pacific media is forged on the understanding and belief that local Pacific media and story-tellers are best-placed to tell and write Pacific stories. It is therefore essential to develop our journalists so that they are able to tell the integrity stories that would move the world to take action and help our region.

PACJN will also act to value-add Pacific integrity reporting - linking journalists and sharing their stories through the different mediums available to use - including using cross border opportunities that would promote the stories further to more readership and viewers.

GOALS

The overall objective is to support the Pacific Anti-Corruption Journalists Network (PACJN) to further strengthen its network and through it build the capacity of its members in understanding anti-corruption issues, and undertaking reporting on integrity, UNCAC, SDG16 and related themes.

The three specific results that are expected are as follows:

1. Strengthened organizational capacity for PACJN focusing on functional capacity and service delivery;
2. PACJN members improve their capacity and knowledge including networking based particularly in terms of anti-corruption reporting including the impact on COVID-related funding; and
3. Media reporting expanded in terms of corruption impact particularly on disadvantaged groups and women.

Methodology

UN-PRAC is requesting a proposal methodology based on the objectives and deliverables for implementation of UN-PRAC “Strengthening media and anti-corruption reporting in the Pacific” activities and capacity building. The proposed methodology should respond to the following deliverables:

Deliverables
