I. GENERAL INFORMATION

Title of the Innovation Challenge: Scaling up inclusive business models in support of Uganda's

Development Minerals sector

Agency: UNDP Uganda

Managing Unit: Inclusive Green Growth

Type of Contract: Agreement between UNDP and the Winning Companies under the "Scaling up inclusive business models in support of Uganda's Development Minerals sector"

Expected Commencement Date: 01 September 2021

II. BACKGROUND/RATIONALE

Development Minerals are minerals and materials that are mined, processed, manufactured, and used domestically in industries such as construction, manufacturing, infrastructure, and agriculture. They include industrial minerals, like limestone and salt; construction materials, like clay, sand, and gravel; dimension stones, like marble and granite; and semi-precious stones, like garnet and tourmaline. Development Minerals are critical inputs for a wide range of sectors. From food plates to toothpaste and tiles to paints and agricultural inputs, adding value to Development Minerals is critical to reducing the heavy reliance on massive imports and to developing new industries and skills that would profoundly contribute to their structural and economic transformation. The scale of the sector is enormous. Eight of the top ten produced mineral commodities in the world are Development Minerals, which total 84% of global mineral production. The demand for Development Minerals is driven by rapid urbanization, infrastructure development, industrialization and post-disaster reconstruction. The Development Minerals value chain includes enterprises that mine and quarry Development Minerals, as well as enterprises which process and produce products out of Development Minerals.

Uganda's Development Minerals sector contributes approximately 350 Million in USD in production value annually; directly employs 390,000 Ugandans with 44% of those being women. Furthermore, if Development Minerals production was computed in national statistics, Uganda's GDP would improve by 1.4%. Over 2.7 million Ugandans directly or indirectly benefit from the Development Minerals sector (Key Reference: Baseline assessment and Value Chain Analysis of Development Minerals sector in Uganda, 2018) . There are exponential benefits from optimizing Development Minerals Value Chains such as business development, livelihood strengthening, using local resources for sustainable and resilient infrastructure and housing, and other socio-economic gains to a larger number of sector SMEs and their communities. However, Uganda, like most African countries, is yet to optimize benefits from these minerals and materials even though they present an opportunity for addressing the unemployment challenge through alternative livelihoods and can facilitate import substitution through enhanced local value addition. Major bottlenecks are caused by i) limited value addition and decent employment due to limited market access among sector operators; ii) limited access to financing and tools, availability of tailor-made financing products that take into the specifics of Development Minerals value chains; iii) gender inequalities that compound the income disparities observed in the sector.

The ACP-EU Development Minerals Programme is capacity building program that aims to build the profile, and improve the management, of Development Minerals. The program is an initiative of the Organization of African, Caribbean and Pacific (OACP) Group of States, financed by the European Union and the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), and implemented by UNDP. The programme, currently under a second phase of implementation, aims to enable ASMEs in the Development Minerals sector to achieve better livelihoods through higher employment and incomes from their mining operations. The programme will ensure these objectives are met by: i) Formalizing artisanal and small-scale mining; ii) Increasing incomes of ASMEs and enhancing business development (entrepreneurial skills, access to finance, technology, markets, and market information); iii) Strengthening environmental and social safeguards in and around mining operations; iv) Supporting women-owned and -run ASMEs along the value-chain and v) Facilitating Inter-OACP knowledge exchanges. One strategy to achieving these objectives is through implementation and scale-up of inclusive business models in the Development Minerals sector in Uganda.

The ACP-EU Development Minerals Programme in Uganda is supporting SMEs in the development mineral value chains to scale-up business practices that benefit the poor and low-income people as consumers and entrepreneurs, help manage the shocks of COVID-19, as well as expand opportunities along their respective supply and value chains for SMEs and their communities. This programme contributes to UNDP's Private Sector Strategy that supports inclusive growth and development and contributes to the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) through promoting innovation and inclusive market development (IMD) approaches. Four components will be financed through this Innovation Challenge:

Component One: Grants to selected SMEs in the development minerals value chains to pilot and/or scale up inclusive business models that increase women's participation in development minerals value chains

Component Two: Grants to a selected financial institution to develop and pilot appropriate financial products for SMEs in the Development Minerals value chains

Component Three: Grants to pilot the development of digitals solution to enhance access to markets and market information; and access to appropriate technologies in the Development Minerals value chains

Component Four: Grants to selected SMEs in the development minerals value chains to pilot and/or scale-up inclusive business models for product development and value addition that benefit the poor and low-income people.

The report - Baseline Assessment and Value Chain Analysis of Development Minerals in Uganda is a key resource that can be utilised for further insight into the issues raised and components indicated these detailed terms of reference. The document can be accessed at: http://developmentminerals.org/index.php/en/resource/studies-handbooks
