1. BACKGROUND

Small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) and informal businesses have been at the receiving end of the adverse COVID-19 crisis impact. Several studies have shown that SMEs have been particularly hard hit by the economic shock due to the decline in demand for goods and services, the liquidity crunch, and disruption of global supply chains and investment flows. SMEs also represent the majority of businesses in sectors that are most affected by the pandemic (e.g. tourism, retail and professional services, and construction and transportation).

A healthy SME sector is vital in rejuvenating the economy. This is particularly true in developing countries as their business composition is mostly dominated by SMEs. According to the Asia Development Bank's statistics, SMEs account for an average of 97% of all enterprises and employ 69% of the national labour force in Asia. SMEs' smaller size allows them to be flexible and adapt to new environments. This gives them the opportunity to recover quickly if effective support and incentives are provided. Given the large share of jobs created by SMEs, their quick recovery can also generate huge positive social impacts in the longer term. Several studies have also identified SMEs as key players in driving green transition and digital transformation.

As many SMEs struggled with the adverse impact of the pandemic, governments in developing countries, and in the Asia-Pacific region in particular, responded by developing various policies and measures to help them weather the storm. At the same time, disruption has also forced business leaders to adopt or expedite digital transformation strategies or other solutions to strengthen their competitiveness. A review and analysis of these policies and practices will shed light on how to support SMEs with an aim to promote a green, resilient recovery driven by digital transformation in the Global South.

2. OBJECTIVE, SCOPE OF WORK, RESPONSIBILITIES AND DESCRIPTION OF THE PROPOSED ANALYTICAL WORK

Objectives of the Assignment:

The purpose of this consultancy is to produce a report that will provide an analysis of the policy measures and good practices of both governments and SMEs put in place in developing countries in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, with a focus in the Asia-Pacific region. By doing so, the report will support knowledge sharing among developing countries on how to develop effective and coherent SMEs policy and strategies with the aim to achieve a green and resilient recovery from the COVID-19 pandemic.

This study will be conducted through research and literature review as well as through the analysis of key policy measures and practices adopted by developing countries in the Asia-Pacific region on supporting SMEs in response to the COVID-19 crisis.

Scope of Work:

The Consultant will work under the supervision of the Regional Coordinator for Asia-Pacific, UNOSSC. The study follows on a webinar convened on 22 July, 2020 by UNOSSC on the COVID-19 impact on SMEs and the discussions by intergovernmental organisations during the online conference on the sidelines of the UN Day for South-South Cooperation commemoration held on 14 September 2021, during which the panel discussion was moderated by an International Labour Office (ILO) staff member. The interested participants in the panel, including the moderator of the panel, will be enlisted as resource people to review the consultant's work.

Specifically, the Consultant will undertake the following tasks:

- Review and analyze existing literature to identify the challenges for SMEs in developing countries in the Asia-Pacific Region against securing a resilient recovery, as well as the opportunities in realising green transition and digital transformation in the Asia-Pacific region.
- Document/provide an inventory and summary of key policies, measures and practices adopted by developing countries and intergovernmental institutions in the Asia-Pacific region towards supporting SMEs in response to the COVID-19 crisis. Review and analyse good practices and policies with a highlight on digital and green solutions.
- Based on the above, formulate lessons learned for governments of developing countries on designing SMEs policies to help them adopt digital technologies and greener practices, in order to achieve a resilient recovery of the SME sector.

3. REQUIREMENTS FOR EXPERIENCE AND QUALIFICATIONS

Required Skills and Experience:

Education:

- An advanced university degree (master's degree) in business administration, political science, public policy, development, economics and/or social sciences is required
