BACKGROUND & PROJECT DESCRIPTION

In Viet Nam, judges are appointed by the State President to exercise judicial power on behalf of the State. A judge’s position is of great responsibility and noble honour. In the process of building the socialist rule-of-law State, the Party, State and People request judges to perform their duties on an impartial, objective and law-biding basis. Judges are expected to become the symbol of moral integrity and adhere to the core principles of the constitution and in line with the teaching of President Ho Chi Minh, according to which, judges must "serve the public, observe the law, be fair and impartial” and “be close to the people, understand the people, help the people, learn from the people”.

The 2015 Criminal Procedure Code amended 25 principles to reflect more profoundly the 2013 Constitution. Most importantly, the Code added new principles to better ensure the human rights enshrined by the Constitution including, inter alia: presumption of innocence (Article 13); no one is convicted twice for a crime (Article 14); and guarantee of adversarial principles in trials (Article 26). The Codes further stipulates provisions to ensure adversarial procedures in handling criminal cases. It specifies the order and procedures in each stage of the proceeding in order to tackle practical shortcomings. The Code also strengthens the guarantee of the right to defense of the accused. All new provisions in the Codes aim at better ensuring human rights.

2018 Code of Ethics and Conduct for Judges (CoC)

In July 2018, the Supreme People’s Courts promulgated the Code of Ethics and Conduct for Judges (CoC). Training on important ethics and conduct that judges must strictly adhere has been a pressing need. One of the key tasks is to show judges the relationship between provisions and requirements of 2015 Codes and the CoC. More importantly, judges need to be trained on how to apply the new provisions of the Codes while complying with the ethical and behavioural standards of their profession.

In 2019 and 2020, under the EU Justice and Legal Empowerment Programme (EU JULE) funded by the European Union, UNDP supported the Supreme People’s Court (SPC) to produce a set of training materials on the Application of Code of Ethics and Conduct for Judges in Implementing 2015 Criminal Procedure Code and Criminal Code. The set of training materials contain useful and practical guidance that judges could apply in hearing criminal cases. Using the materials, two training workshops were organised for more than 140 judges and court officials in various provinces in the North and South of Viet Nam. Although the workshops were successful with high turnout of participants, they were still largely delivered in the top-down traditional way where interaction between trainers and participants was minimal.

Within the framework of EU JULE programme for 2021, UNDP continues supporting SPC to revise and improve the existing set of materials (about 30 pages), with the orientation to adopt interactive and learners-centred methodologies in order to enhance their impacts. Subsequently, 2 two-day training workshops will be organized, tentatively in Q1/2022 with the participation of judges and court officers of the High Courts and Provincial Courts, who did not participate in the previous trainings in 2019 and 2020.

UNDP is hiring 2 national consultants (NCs) to carry out two key tasks: 1) revise and improve the existing set of materials; and 2) conduct two two-day training workshops. Of these two NCs, one NC is criminal law expert who takes primary responsibility in revising the content of the training materials and conduct the training workshops as key trainer (NC1, or NC1-Criminal). The other NC is in charge of designing activities to deliver the training content and conducting the training workshop as facilitator (NC2).

This TOR is for NC2 – Training methodology expert and facilitator

OBJECTIVES

(1) To revise the two existing sets of training materials to adopt interactive and learners-centred methodologies – (with instructions on how to adapt for online format training). In particular:

(i) Design lesson plans with interactive activities to deliver the content of the training (based on the revised/updated materials provided by NC1);

(ii) Design outlines for the learner’s handbook and trainer’s manual;

(iii) Include an agenda for a two-day training workshop
(iv) Collaborate with NC1 to develop the learner’s handbook and trainer’s manual

(2) Facilitate 2 two-day training workshops on for judges and court officials in Ha Noi and Ho Chi Minh city. Using the revised materials (as set out under (1)), the training workshops aim at raising awareness of judges, who did not participate in previous workshops in 2019 and 2020, on the relationship between provisions of the 2015 Codes and the CoC. Accordingly, the training workshops concentrate on:

(i) Knowledge:
   • Awareness on codes of conduct in other countries and international standards (Bangalore Principles);
   • Understand the provisions of the CoC and identifying areas where judges must pay close attention in complying while carrying out their function as a judge in a criminal case;
   • Understand other provisions of the 2015 Codes and other laws and regulations governing the conduct of judges.

(ii) Skills:
   • Be able to clarify the applications of the CoC and the Codes in the settlement of criminal cases;
   • Criminal judgement writing skills

(iii) Value:
   • Appreciate the links between the CoC and the 2015 Codes in their practice as judges of criminal cases;

SCOPE OF WORK
