CONTEXT/BACKGROUND Corruption undercuts countries’ efforts to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). It wastes valuable resources, reduces government effectiveness, erodes trust in public institutions, distorts markets, stifles innovation, deepens inequalities, damages the environment, and increases vulnerability to crises and conflicts. Driven by country priorities across the Arab states region and recognizing the critical importance of governance, which is one of UNDP’s “signature solutions” under its new Strategic Plan (2022-2025), UNDP adopted a regional approach to support and facilitate measurable progress towards transparency and accountability. This approach optimizes the use of scarce technical resources, enables agile and swift responses in a rapidly changing environment, mitigates risks of politicization and allows for accelerated and tailored exchanges of expertise among peers drawing on commonalities among the countries of the region.

UNDP’s regional project on Anti-Corruption and Integrity in Arab Countries (ACIAC) contributes to the Strategic Plan’s “direction of change” including structural transformations, leaving no one behind, and building resilience by targeting the achievement of the four outputs outlined in this annual work plan. Related planned activities for 2022 are funded by the Government of the Republic of Korea with additional funding secured from the Government of Canada. Primary recipients of the support are stakeholders across the region with a priority given to Egypt, Iraq, Jordan, Lebanon, Morocco, Palestine, and Tunisia. The regional team also provides support to additional countries through its advisory services to the various Country Offices in the Arab States region.

In 2022, the regional project will focus on the inclusive and effective implementation of the UN Convention against Corruption (UNCAC), including through policy and legislative support, training, and the provision of technologies and other tools to boost capacities of concerned institutions. It will also aim to significantly expand the work on transparency and accountability in key vulnerable sectors, including through new research and the development and deployment of sectoral tools to identify, assess and mitigate risks of corruption. In addition, the focus in 2022 will also be put on strengthening collective action capacities to advocate for the achievement of SDG16, including through the Arab Anti-Corruption and Integrity Network (ACINET), while fostering sustainable capacity development on related topics through specialized academies, training centers and universities in the project countries.

In this context, ACIAC is looking to hire a trainer of trainers to work under the supervision of the ACIAC Chief Technical Advisor or their delegated representative to support the implementation of a training of trainers on anti-corruption education.

SCOPE OF WORK, RESPONSIBILITIES AND DESCRIPTION OF THE PROPOSED WORK

The trainer will participate remotely and be responsible for the following areas of work and outputs:

1. Prepare 2 training packages based on existing training materials to be provided by JIACC (one for training secondary students and one for training university students), with each package including: introduction letter, training manual with PPTs for students, training manual with PPTs for trainers (the training manual for students, with teaching notes for trainers), and pre- and post-training student evaluation forms.
2. Conduct and deliver the training of trainers (20 contact hours over one week).
3. Carry out pre- and post-training evaluation of JIACC trainers, using format to be agreed with JIACC.
4. Draft an evaluation report with recommendations on the trainees.
